

PRESS RELEASE

We are pleased to announce we have strengthened our partnership to deliver a higher quality of life to wheelchair users throughout the world. On March 27, 2007 Dane acquired the outstanding shares of LEVO AG. As a result, LEVO AG becomes a wholly owned subsidiary of Dane Technologies Inc.

After over 30 years of exceptional leadership, Dr. Kurt H. Fischer intends to retire from LEVO by May 1, 2007; however he will remain available as a consultant on an ongoing basis. Effective immediately Thomas Raeber has been promoted to President of LEVO AG and will be responsible for managing all LEVO AG operations.

"The foundation of our partnership with Dane has been built on our shared values of integrity and a mutual commitment to standing technology. The LEVO/Dane partnership will continue to grow through our shared vision to bring standing solutions to all wheelchair users," said Dr. Kurt H. Fischer, founder, former CEO and owner of LEVO AG.

"For over 30 years LEVO has been the leader in delivering standing solutions that combine Swiss engineering and precision with superior design and reliability. We are very proud to join with LEVO and help build upon their tradition of excellence and leadership in standing technologies. This acquisition plays an important part in continuing our tradition of growth and building share holder value," said Dan Johnson, CEO of Dane Technologies.

Thomas Raeber, President of LEVO AG commented: "Together with the team in Wohlen, I am excited about the opportunities to grow and capture synergies in R&D, manufacturing, marketing, and distribution. This will allow us to deliver an even greater value to our customers."

David Leckey, President of Dane Healthcare said: "This partnership presents an excellent opportunity to deliver Dane Healthcare products through LEVO's international sales network and expand LEVO sales throughout the North American market. It will also allow us to better leverage new product development resources."

As a team we would like to thank Dr. Kurt H. Fischer for his leadership in founding and building LEVO AG and the very positive impact he has had on the lives of thousands of people. We wish him a very happy retirement!
